

MOVE TO BRING ABOUT SETTLEMENT OF STRIKE

GUARDSMEN SERVING AS DEPUTY SHERIFFS

Were Employed by the Fuel Company Before the Militia Was Called Out.

(Special to The Herald.)
Winter Quarters, Utah, Nov. 27.—Sheriff Wilcox received reports tonight from secret service men to the effect that a committee of strikers were probably making a midnight visit to Clear Creek and call the non-union miners to their doors for the purpose of intimidating them. Wilcox believes these reports and has taken steps to head off the union men when they reach Clear Creek. A number of men belonging to the national guard are acting as special deputy sheriffs here in the pay of the Utah Fuel Company. These men were engaged to act as special guards before the militia was ordered out. They will be retained here in a private capacity instead of being left to join their companies.

A number of local miners left here today for the east. The great majority of strikers, however, declare that they are prepared to carry on the fight, if necessary.

UNIONS ORGANIZED BY THE MINE WORKERS

Men Met on the Hillside and Avoided Trouble—Three Arrests Yesterday.

(Special to The Herald.)
Winter Quarters, Utah, Nov. 27.—The organization of the striking miners of Clear Creek and Winter Quarters was effected today for the first time. Heretofore the men have been without any definite understanding among themselves as to the action of the United Mine Workers have been here and induced the miners to leave work, but no union was in existence in these two camps until today. According to the spokesmen for the miners more than six hundred men were initiated in an open air meeting, held on the side of the hill just below the mine today. The leaders declare that they have assurances from those now working in the mines that they will not be molested in an open air meeting, held on the side of the hill just below the mine today. The leaders declare that they have assurances from those now working in the mines that they will not be molested in an open air meeting, held on the side of the hill just below the mine today.

The operators' representatives here state that the situation is greatly improved since the arrival of troops and that the normal output will be reached within a few days. Here, as at Clear Creek, notice has been served on the strikers that they should consider themselves discharged and notifying them to vacate the property of the company.

Open Air Meeting.
Long before daylight the strikers commenced moving toward the site of meeting. They left their homes at Clear Creek by twos and threes and by the time the sun rose they were strung along the railroad as far as Scofield.

By decree of the town board at Scofield all meetings within the corporate limits have been prohibited and the strikers were ordered to leave the town by 8 o'clock fully five hundred men had gathered, including the strikers from both Winter Quarters and Clear Creek. It was a perfectly orderly crowd and they were not molested. Sheriff Wilcox, accompanied by a file of soldiers, went to the scene and took three prisoners without trouble. Joe Barbell, a business man of Castle Gate and organizer for the United Mine Workers, set the initiating machinery in motion and enrolled the men in two unions, one for each of the nearby camps. Address was made by Barbell and William R. Lewis, a local American miner.

The tenor of the speeches was mild. The men were asked to refrain from mines, but in no way to aggravate the situation by acts of violence. They were urged to remain sober and to keep the peace. The following officers, for Winter Quarters, Scofield union, were elected: President, Matt Pakka; vice president, William R. Lewis; secretary, Thomas Caisley.

At the conclusion of the meeting the men dispersed quietly, none of them going home. Tomorrow another meeting will be held, when the union leaders expect to enroll additional members.

Militia Has Little to Do.
The military is having little to do. No disturbances have been reported today. With the exception of loaded rifles and strict patrol duty, the men might be on a peaceful camping expedition. Winter Quarters is guarded by one company of militia, two at Clear Creek and two at Scofield, where General Cannon makes his headquarters.

There was said to be a project to capture Barbell after today's meeting.

STATE NEWS

Today the strikers were expecting the arrival of Con Keller, another organizer, who has been at Sunnyside and Castle Gate and a lawyer from Salt Lake City, who will defend those members of the union who are arrested. The men complain bitterly of the few arrests that have been made, claiming that no opportunity is offered for defense and that conviction is assured before trial. Dominick Chiara and Bill M. Arinelli were liberated, Martin Hill on $500 bail furnished by the town marshal and Chiara on his own recognizance. It fared worse with Henriksen, the third man, who was promptly convicted of disturbing the peace and sentenced to spend 100 days in the county jail.

COAL MINERS MAKE VERY SMALL WAGES

That Is the Story the Men Who Are on Strike Are Now Telling.

(Special to The Herald.)
Scofield, Nov. 27.—Whether or not it is true that the men who have ceased to dig coal in the mines of Carbon county have formally submitted their grievances to the operators, the strikers are willing enough to tell their troubles, real or imaginary, to anyone who will listen. Their sincerity at least cannot be questioned. They live in hovels of mud and straw, and are convinced before you have talked with them five minutes. They believe, or many of them do, that they are the victims of injustice and that the operators have not treated them fairly.

"If any one believes these stories of coal miners making wages of $100 to $150 per month they are making a grave mistake," said an English-speaking miner to a Herald man today. I have worked in the mines for several years, and I honestly do not believe that any miner ever made such wages.

Depends on the Bosses.
"As a matter of fact," continued the strikers, "we make from $2 to $3.50 a day. This depends largely on the company bosses. The great majority of the men earn $2 a day; others make $2.50, while a few, very few, average for a number of weeks at a time as high as $3.50 a day. That is the limit."

Living expenses in Scofield are not high. Winter Quarters will cost the average family $78 a month, provided they live comfortably. As a matter of fact, the miners have had to stint their families and themselves because they could not make in the mines what was needed for ordinary expenses.

The company takes an unfair advantage of us in the matter of weighing. We are paid by the ton. But the company charges 30 per cent of the product to slack, so that the miner really gets credit for only 70 per cent of what he produces at the most. We want to strike, so that our families and weighers, who will see that we get honest weight."

In Salt Lake the coal mine operators charge the dealer 10 per cent for prices for coal and do not allow for the slack. The retailer must separate the coal from the main body of the product and sell it at a lower price than he is compelled to pay for it.

HABEAS CORPUS FOR ORGANIZER DEMOLLI

Lawyer Edler Secures Writ and Starts For Prison to Effect Labor Leader's Release From Jail.

Judge Jacob Johnson yesterday granted a writ of habeas corpus in the case of Charles Demolli, the Italian organizer of the miners' union, who was in jail at price. A. B. Edler, attorney for Demolli, left last night to serve the papers on Sheriff Hyrum Wilcox of Carbon county. The hearing of the case is set for 10 a. m. Monday.

The petition to the judge alleged that Demolli was arrested without cause at the points of bayonets; that he was not confronted with the witnesses against him, was not allowed to confer with counsel, to summon witnesses in his own behalf or to have a trial by jury.

DEMOLLI REMAINS IN JAIL AT PRICE

A Number of Italians Who Called to See Him Were Refused Admittance.

(Special to The Herald.)
Price, Nov. 27.—Charles Demolli, labor organizer and editor, still languishes in jail here despite the statements of his friends and sympathizers at the time he was incarcerated that he would be questioned but a few days until he gained his liberty. Demolli spends his time reading and writing. His meals are taken to him from a restaurant. Two other Italians are in jail—one from Sunnyside and the other from Scofield.

During the day a number of Italians were down from Castle Gate to see Demolli, but were refused admittance to the jail.

About the same number of men are at work at Sunnyside today as yesterday. The afternoon work of coal came out of the camp, representing yesterday's work of the diggers. Everything is quiet here tonight. There being no arrests or disturbances during the day. At Castle Gate there is no change from yesterday or the day before.

COMPANY TRYING TO KEEP THE MEN AT WORK

Exertions Redoubled Since the Strikers Have Joined the Miners' Union.

(Special to The Herald.)
Clear Creek, Nov. 27.—Every resource of the operators is being brought to bear to keep the mines open at Clear Creek and Winter Quarters. The organization of the United Mine Workers' union today has stirred the company's representatives to redoubled exertions. In this they are being aided by the military. Tonight Superintendent Forrester of the Clear Creek mines is making the rounds of the houses occupied by the Finns, endeavoring to persuade the men now out to go to work and to hold their fire. The men are wavering. He is accompanied by a guard of the militia. The men are told that they may be without the slightest fear of the Italians, that the military will protect them going and coming from the mines, and that their families will be protected while they are absent from home. The county authorities say these men have been told by the strikers that they will be killed and that their families will be assaulted if they work in the mines during the strike. Members of the union contradict this flatly.

YOUNG MURDERERS PUT UP A DESPERATE FIGHT

Officers of the Pennsylvania railroad were coming up fast and soon were close on the fugitives' heels, tracking them in the newly fallen snow. The men were seen as they dodged about in the sand, and the farmers, most of whom were armed with double-barreled shotguns, opened fire on them.

Compelled to Surrender.
Neldermeier received a charge full in the head, and the blood streamed down his face and into his eyes, blinding him so that he could hardly rise. A shot grazed Van Dein's head, carrying off some of his hair, and his wounded leg was weakened. The posse was closing in on all sides, and the murderers were forced to surrender.

The men were at once handcuffed, placed upon a train and hurried to Chicago. They were taken from the train and in a patrol wagon were hurried to the city hall. They were taken into the office of the chief of police, and there, in the presence of Mayor Harrison and a throng of officers, they discussed the events of the day as calmly as though it had been nothing unusual for them.

Following fresh footprints in the snow from the scene of the capture of Neldermeier and Van Dein, five residents of East Tollester, Ind., captured Emil Roeski, sitting on a bench in the Wabash station at Ellettsville, Ind., a town four miles northeast of Liverpool, Ind. He was unarmed.
